CLAY ACQUITTED, BRANNEN GUILTY

Archie Clay Acquitted on Charge of Larceny of Money from Hotel Gettysburg. Brannen Guilty on Two Charges.

January Court is attracting a large attendance, several cases of unusual interest and importance being up for trial, among them the cases against Pittenturf and Brannen, the jail breakers.

The first case called was that of the Commonwealth vs. Archie Clay who was charged with larceny, the case growing out of the theft of $20.00 from the Hotel Gettysburg some months ago. Clay was night watchman at the hotel at the time. His case was listed for trial at August Court but it was found necessary to have it postponed at both August and November terms.

After hearing the testimony of the witnesses for the prosecution the Court instructed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty.

S. S. Neely, Esq., conducted the case for the Commonwealth and J. Donald Swope, Esq., represented the defendant. John Shealer and George E. Gordon were appointed tipsters for the first week and David F. Starry and Henry D. Rahn for the second week.

J. J. Reindollar was appointed foreman of the grand jury and true bills were returned in the following cases.

Com. vs. Charles Moose. Larceny as bailee. Oath of James E. Weikert.

Com. vs. Lorrie Toulay. Misdemeanor. Oath of Mary E. Becker.

Com. vs. Joseph Brannen. Larceny and receiving stolen goods and aggravated assault. Oath of Charles Sponseller.

Com. vs. James Pittenturf. Breaking and entering warehouse and escape from jail.

Com. vs. Simon A. Holt.

A true bill was found in the case of the Commonwealth vs. Joseph Brannen charged with escape from jail and the defendant entered a plea of guilty.

Sale of real estate of Catherine Bream, deceased, in Bendersville confirmed.

This morning Hattie Tonsil and May Edwards pleaded guilty to making an affray on Baltimore street one night several weeks ago.

A true bill was returned in the case against Tom White charged with larceny.

A true bill was returned in the case against W. C. Reiffert and E. E. Heindel charged with false pretense.

Not a true bill was returned in the case against Andrew Davenport charged with assault and battery and the county was directed to pay the costs.

Joseph Brannen was found guilty on a charge of aggravated assault and battery in connection with his escape Christmas night from the Adams County jail. The charge of aggravated assault and battery with intent to kill was not proved. Brannen was next tried and found guilty on the charge of burglary following the Z. J. Peters robbery at Guernsey.

The Grand Jury established the identity of James Pittenturf convicted of the assault on Hanson B. Hoar last July to be the same as that of the James Pittenturf who had served two former penitentiary terms.

Cora Willis, colored, was given 10 days in the county jail when she failed to pay costs in the case of assault and battery against Tom White. The Grand Jury returned not a true bill.

MORE BUILDING MATERIAL HERE

Granite and Structural Steel for New Federal Building Arrive and are Placed Ready for Use. Busy Site.

Everything is being prepared for resumption of work on the new federal building as soon as warmer weather permits and just as soon as indications point to a long period of high temperature active operations will be resumed.

The main foundation walls have been completed but some of the other walls have several feet yet to be finished before their required height will have been reached. Masons will be put on this work as soon as practicable. The stone work will then be taken up.

The first carload of granite for this work was unloaded today and the material taken to the site where provision had been made to receive it. The stone comes from Fitzwilliams, New Hampshire, and a course of granite nine inches in height will be placed about the entire building. The marble will be started on top of this course of granite.

Much of the structural steel has been received. The longest steel girders to be used on the building will be thirty five feet in length and work at placing these will be taken in hand as soon as three courses of stone have been laid.

Although there have been no building operations at the site for several weeks there has been some work going on almost every day, either clearing away for new material expected or getting matters in shape for resuming work at the earliest possible date.

W.M. RY. TO SPEND $7,000,000 ON BALTIMORE TERMINALS

The Western Maryland Railroad Company has completed plans for splendid terminals in Baltimore, to be used in conjunction with the New York Central railroad. The entire project including extensive betterments at the present Port Covington yards and pier, is to cost in the neighborhood of $7,000,000.

The development will include the creation of big yards in the neighborhood of Hillen station, work on which is now progressing, and the closing of several streets in that territory. It will mean the entrance of the road, which is to be a new trunk line with the opening of the Cumberland extension next month, to tidewater in the upper harbor.

The corporation has been buying property along the proposed route in the city and will have to traverse a comparatively short distance to reach deep water. The city is co-operating with the company.

J. T. HARAHAAN KILLED IN WRECK

Two Other Rock Island Officials Victims of Smash-Up.

PRIVATE CAR DEMOLISHED

Son of Former Secretary of War Wright Also Lost His Life In Collision In Illinois.
Centralia, Ill., Jan. 23.—Four persons were killed, including some of the most prominent railroad men in the United States, and many others injured when the Panama limited, No. 3, running fifty miles an hour, crashed into the rear end and telescoped passenger train No. 25, standing near the station at Kimmunity, Ill., twenty miles from Centralia.

A private car of the Great Northern, in which were the railroad officials, attached to the rear of train No. 25, was demolished.
The dead are:
James T. Harahan, Sr., former president of the Illinois Central.
Frank O. Melcher, second vice president of the Rock Island.
E. B. Peirce, general solicitor of the Rock Island.
Eldridge E. Wright, of Memphis, Tenn., son of Luke E. Wright, former secretary of war.

The injured include: C. M. Vert, fireman of No. 3, fractured skull; R. J. Sturt, engineer of No. 3, part of hand torn off and bad cut on head, and Jesse Gilbert, fireman of No. 25, hip dislocated and internal injuries.
None of the injured passengers were severely hurt.
The private car was that of F. O. Melcher, second vice president of the Rock Island railroad. It was attached to the rear of the Seminole Flyer, which was standing at the railroad station at Kimmunity, while the engine was taking water. The engine of No. 3 train ploughed half way through this car.
Four occupants of the private car, who were near the forward end, escaped death or injury. They are: Byron B. Curry, private secretary of Mr. Melcher; Thomas B. Buzbee, of Little Rock, Ark., local attorney for the Rock Island, and two colored porters.
Mr. Harahan was recently elected president of the Arkansas, Memphis Railway Bridge and Terminal company. The Rock Island officials were going to Memphis with him in connection with the proposed construction of a $5,000,000 bridge across the Mississippi river there. Extensive terminals at each end of the bridge also were planned.

The cause of the wreck is said to be the scarcity of water along the road. A special order makes it necessary for all trains to take water at Kimmunity, and a freight train, which took water before the express, held the express longer than usual.
The Panama limited carried sleeping cars only and withstood the terrific smashing. The express was composed of coaches built of steel.
The bodies of the four dead were mutilated. The top of Mr. Harahan's head was torn off. The arms of most of the victims were torn off, and a doctor reported that the legs are held on by shreds.

HENRY M. FLAGLER.
Man Who Built Railroad Over the Ocean.

OPEN RAILROAD BUILT OVER SEA

Henry M. Flagler's Key West Line Dedicated.

Key West, Fla., Jan. 23.—An unusual achievement in railroad construction was turned over to the world when a passenger train, seemingly supported by trail masonry, steamed across seas from Knight's Key to Key West. The terminus is forty-six miles from Florida's mainland.
The train's trip marked the opening of the over-water extension of the Florida East Coast railway and was the signal for the beginning of a three-days' celebration.
One of the foremost figures among the public men in Key West for the ceremonies was Henry M. Flagler, of New York, to whom is given the credit for the completion of the engineering feat.

It was Mr. Flagler, the president of the railroad, who overcame financial and physical obstructions, forcing the construction of a railway across the line of coral keys between the Florida mainland and Key West. For great distances between keys the rails are supported by stretches of steel and masonry.
Warships from Portugal and Cuba and vessels of the fifth division of the American Atlantic fleet are at Key West for the ceremonies. Assistant Secretary of War Oliver represents President Taft and members of the house naval affairs committee have also arrived in Key West. They will go to Havana on the cruiser Washington on Wednesday, to return Friday or Saturday.
In construction this feat is considered the greatest accomplishment of its kind in the world. The entire line to Key West extends a distance of 156 miles, nearly half of which is over open water. Forty-two keys, or islands, are crossed in this stretch.

ROYAL PARTY WILL VISIT TAFT

Duke of Connaught to Make Trip to Washington.

WHITELAW REID HIS HOST

Uncle of King George Will Spend Three Days in New York, Attending Only Private Functions.

New York, Jan. 23.—Revisiting New York after forty-four years, the Duke of Connaught, Canada's governor general and the uncle of England's king, who arrived with the duchess, Princess Patricia and the members of their household, to be the guest until Friday of the American ambassador to the court of St. James, Whitelaw Reid, and Mrs. Reid, finds the city has changed amazingly since, as young Prince Arthur, he was shown about by William Butler Duncan.

His stay in this country will include, after all, a visit to President Taft on Thursday. The announcement of the change of plans was made somewhat unexpectedly, after the duke had ascertained that the president would be in the White House next Thursday afternoon and that the visit would not upset any of the president's arrangements. The governor general was so meticulous as to that.
At the time the duke accepted Mr. Reid's invitation he had in mind also the possibility of a call on the president of the United States, but being familiar with the unelastic program of rulers and having in mind especially President Taft's frequent absences from Washington, the duke did not desire to tie the president to the White House if the president had made other arrangements for any particular day.
Accompanied by Colonel Lowther, the duke will leave New York on Thursday morning for Washington. They will call on the president at 5 p. m. James Bryce, the British ambassador, will be the duke's host at dinner that evening. The duke and Colonel Lowther will leave Washington for New York on the midnight train.

The visit to the president lengthens by one day the duke's stay in this country. He will start for Ottawa at 7.40 p. m. on Friday.
The first day of the visit of the vice royal party was full of incident. After breakfasting with Mr. and Mrs. Reid, the Duke of Connaught went with Mr. Reid for an automobile ride. The duke left his card at William Butler Duncan's, on Fifth avenue, and cards for Governor and Mrs. Dix, who were at the Waldorf. The Princess Patricia went motoring with Mrs. Joseph H. Choate, Jr.

After luncheon the visitors, with their hosts, spent two hours at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, going from there to tea at the home of Joseph H. Choate. Returning at dark, the duke walked forth briskly for fresh air and a walk.
There was a dinner in their honor, an informal affair of forty covers. Governor and Mrs. Dix were among the guests.

John Marienz, twenty-three years old, a contract miner at the same colliery, was squeezed between mine cars and seriously, if not fatally, injured.
Joseph De Grish, sixteen years old, was caught in a scraper line at the Packer No. 4 colliery and so badly injured that his recovery is doubtful.

TAFT TRUSTS HITCHCOCK

President Angered by Reports That He Is Disloyal.

Washington, Jan. 23.—President Taft emphatically denied to White House callers that members of his cabinet were urging him to dislodge Postmaster General Hitchcock from his official family.
The president made it clear that he did not place the slightest credence in reports that Mr. Hitchcock was disloyal to him.
The president made it known that he was greatly irritated that these repeated reports of Hitchcock's activities in behalf of Colonel Roosevelt should be brought to him.
The president particularly was exasperated by the fact that many of these tales were attributed to members of his official household. It is known he had reference to reports that at least two of his cabinet had advised him to force the resignation of Hitchcock.

The fact which the president wanted made most emphatic was that his confidence in Hitchcock was as strong as ever and that he took no stock in any of the reports concerning the postmaster general.
The president particularly was exasperated by the fact that many of these tales were attributed to members of his official household. It is known he had reference to reports that at least two of his cabinet had advised him to force the resignation of Hitchcock.

AVIATOR FALLS 150 FEET TO DEATH

Rutherford Page is Killed at Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 23.—Aviator Rutherford Page fell from a height of 150 feet and was fatally injured at Dominguez field.

Page landed within a few hundred feet of the hangars in full sight of the horror-stricken spectators in the grand stand. He was given first aid in front of the grand stand, while thousands stood silently and awaited the verdict of the doctors. He was taken to the field hospital, but died just as he arrived there.

Page was 25 years old. He came to Los Angeles from the east, where he is said to belong to a family that is prominent socially. He was given his pilot's license at Dayton, O., less than a month ago.
Page had ascended but 300 feet when it became evident that he had lost control of his machine. Suddenly the craft turned turtle and hurtled earthward. At an elevation of 150 feet it seemed to stop and hover, then it shot down to the ground at a sickening speed. Page did not regain consciousness after he struck the earth.

FINDS BOMB IN CELLAR

Woman Discovers Crude Affair on a Rafter in Her Home.

Franklin, Pa., Jan. 23.—Mrs. George Weaver, wife of a railroad yard master, found a homemade bomb on a rafter in the cellar of her home.
It consisted of a long bottle filled with powder, from the neck of which protruded a long fuse. The neck was encased with mud and the bottle was wrapped in draughting paper and tied with fishing tackle.

The bomb was wrapped in the comic section of a newspaper. The date of the paper would indicate that the bomb was made five years ago, when the house was occupied by the family of Abraham Miller, a non-union machinist, who was outspoken in his loyalty to his employers, the Colburn Machine Tool company, when it had a strike on its hands.

Both ships are to be constructed within a period of thirty-six months of the date of contract.

THE GIRL from HIS TOWN

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Dan Blair, the 22-year-old son of the fifty-million-dollar copper king of Blairtown, Mont., is a guest at the English home of Lady Galorey. Dan's father had been courteous to Lord Galorey during his visit to the United States and the courtesy is now being returned to the young man. The youth has an ideal girl in his mind whom he some day hopes to find.

CHAPTER II.—Dan meets Lily, Duchess of Breakwater, a beautiful widow, who is attracted by his immense fortune and takes a liking to her.

CHAPTER III.—Back at Blairtown, when Dan was a boy, a girl with golden hair, in a white dress trimmed with blue and a solo at a church. He had never forgotten her, although she never again appeared in Blairtown.

CHAPTER IV.—The Galoreys, Lily and Dan take a box at a London theater where one Letty Lane is the star. Dan recognizes her as the girl from his town who sang so sweetly. Going behind the scenes he introduces himself to her and she remembers him.

CHAPTER V.—He learns that Prince Pontotowsky, whom he has met in the Galorey set, is sister and sister to Letty. He sees them in a cafe and the prince gives him a bright smile of loyal fellowship.

CHAPTER VI.—Lord Galorey finds that his wife is borrowing money to a large amount from the good-hearted Dan and that Lily is setting her cap to trap his millions. He and a friend named Ruggles determine to protect the westerner from fortune hunters.

CHAPTER VII.—Ruggles finds that Dan attends every performance at the theater, spellbound by the beautiful singing of Letty Lane. He also finds that the singer has many friends among London's poor whom she charitably helps.

CHAPTER VIII.—Young Blair goes to see Lily. He can talk of nothing but Letty and this annoys the Duchess. He asks the Duchess to invite Letty to sing in society and help her out of the theatrical rut, but she refuses.

CHAPTER IX.—The westerner again behind the scenes finds Letty growing ill from hard work. She faints and alarms him, but when the call comes to go on the stage she recovers and goes through her act successfully.

CHAPTER X.—Dan locates the woman with whom Letty lives, and going there finds her ill. She recovers, and Dan sees her later in the company of Pontotowsky. He decides the man, Ruggles and Dan invite Letty to supper.

CHAPTER XI.—The supper passes off pleasantly. Letty asks Dan to use some of his fortune to build a home for disappointed theatrical people.

CHAPTER XII.—Dan visits Lily; the refinement and beauty surrounding her attracts him and for the time being he forgets Letty.

CHAPTER XIII.—Dan announces his engagement to the Duchess of Breakwater, but the eyes of Letty are still a loving memory.

CHAPTER XIV.—The singer gets into financial difficulties and Dan is anxious to assist her. Letty refuses to sing for an entertainment given by Lily.

CHAPTER XV.—Galorey tells Dan that all Lily cares for is his money, and while the westerner is partly convinced of this he decides to remain true to his engagement.

CHAPTER XVI.—In an interview with Lily it is disclosed by Galorey that they have been mutually in love for years. Forces Lily to confess to him that she is only after the money of the westerner.

CHAPTER XVII.—Letty sings at an aristocratic function with great success and is applauded by the nobility. The admiring Dan escorts her home.

CHAPTER XIX.

Dan Awakes.

The next night Dan, magnetically drawn down the Strand to the Galety, arrived just before the close of the last act, slipped in, and sat far back watching Letty Lane close her part. After hearing her sing as she had the afternoon before in the worldly group, it was curious to see her before the public in her flashing dress and to realize how much she was a thing of the people. Tonight she was a completely personal element to Dan. He could never think of her again as he had hitherto. The sharp drive through the town that afternoon in her motor had made a change in his feelings. He had been hurt for her, with anger at the duchess of Breakwater's rudeness, and from the first he had always known that there was in him a hot championship for the actress. Tonight, whenever the man who sang with her put his arms around her, danced with her, held her, it was an offense to Dan Blair; it had angered him before, but tonight it did more. One by one everything faded out of his foreground but the brilliant little figure with her golden hair, her lovely face, her beautiful graceful body, and in her last gesture on the stage before the curtain went down, she seemed to Blair to call him and distinctly to make an appeal to him:

"You might rest your weary feet If you came to Mandalay."

Well, there was nothing weary about the young, live, vigorous American, as, standing there in his dark edge of the theater, his hands in his pockets, his bright face fixed toward the stage, he watched the slow falling of the curtain on the musical drama. Dan realized how full of vigor he was; he felt stronger and capable, indeed a feeling of power often came to him delightfully, but it had never been needed for him to exert his forces, he had never had need to show his mettle. Now he felt at those words:

"You might rest your weary feet"

how, with all his heart, he longed that the dancer should rest those lovely tired little feet of hers, far away from any call of the public, far away on some lovely shore which the hymn tune called the coral strand. As he gazed at her mobile, sensitive face, whose eyes had seen the world, and whose lips—Dan's thoughts changed here with a great pang, and the close of all his meditations was: "Gosh, she ought to rest!"

The boy walked briskly back of the scenes toward the little door, behind which, as he tapped, he hoped with an his heart to hear her voice bid him come in. But there were other voices in the room. He rattled the door knob and Letty Lane herself called to him without opening the door:

"Will you go, please, Mr. Blair? I can't see anyone tonight."

He had nothing to do but to go—to grind his heel as he turned—to swear deeply against Pontotowsky. His late ecstasy was turned to gall. The theater seemed horrible to him; the chattering of the chorus girls, their giggles, their laughter as he passed the little groups, all seemed weird and infernal, and everything became an object of irritation.

As he went blindly out of the theater he struck his arm against a piece of stage fittings and the blow was sharp and stinging, but he was glad of the hurt.

Without, in the street, Dan took his place with the other men and waited, a bitter taste in his mouth and anger in his breast, waited until Letty Lane fluttered down, followed by Pontotowsky, and the two drove away.

The young man could have gone after, running behind the motor, but there was a taxicab at hand; he jumped in it, ordering the man to follow the car to the Savoy. There the boy had the pleasure of seeing Miss Lane enter the hotel, Pontotowsky with her—had the anguish of seeing them both go up in the lift to her apartments.

When Dan came to himself he heard the chiming of St. Martin's ring out eleven. He then remembered for the first time that he had promised to dine alone at home with the Duchess of Breakwater.

"Gosh, Lily will be wild!"

In spite of the lateness of the hour he hurried to Park Lane. The familiar face of the man servant who let him in blurred before the young man's eyes. Her grace was out at the theater? Blair would wait then, and he went into the small drawing room, quiet, empty, reposeful, with a fire across the andirons, for the evening was damp and cool. Still dazed by his jealous, passionate emotions, he glanced about the room, chose a long leather sofa, and stretching out his length, fell asleep. There in the shadow he slept profoundly, waking suddenly to find that he was not alone. Across the room the Duchess of Breakwater stood by the table; she was in evening dress, her cloak and gloves on the chair at her side. She laughed softly and the man to whom she laughed, on whom she smiled, was Lord Galorey.

Blair raised himself up on the sofa without making any noise, and he saw Galorey take the woman in his arms. The sight didn't make the fiancé angry. He realized instantly that he wanted to believe that it was true, and as there was nothing theatrical in the young westerner, he sprang up, slang so much a part of his nature that the first words that came to his lips was a phrase in vogue.

"Look who's here!" he cried, and came blithely forward, his head clear, his lips smiling.

The duchess gave a little scream and Dan lunged up to the two people and held his hand frankly out to the lady.

"That's all right, Lily! Go right on, Gordon, please. Only I had to let you know when I waked up! Only fair, I guess I must have been asleep quite a while."

The duchess of Breakwater shrugged. "I don't know what you dreamed," she said acidly, "if you were asleep."

"Well, it was a very pretty dream," the boy returned, "and showed what a stupid ass I've been to think I couldn't have dreamed it when I was awake."

"I think you are crazy," the duchess exclaimed.

But Blair repeated: "That's all right. I mean to say as far as I am concerned—"

And, Galorey, in order to stand by his lady, murmured:

"My dear chap, you have been dreaming."

But Blair met the Englishman's gray eyes with his blue ones. "I did have a bottle of champagne, Gordon, that's a fact, but it couldn't make me see what I did see."

"Dan," the duchess of Breakwater broke in, "let Gordon take you home, like a dear. You're really ragging in a ridiculous way."

Blair looked at her steadily, and as he did so he repeated:

"That's all right, Lily, Gordon cares a lot, and the truth of the matter is that I do not."

She grew very pale.

"I would have stuck to my word, of course," he went on, "but we'd have been infernally unhappy and ended up in the divorce courts. Now, this little scene here of yours lets me out, and I don't lay it up against either of you."

"Gordon!" she appealed to her lover, "why, in heaven's name, don't you speak!"

The Englishman realized that while he was glad at heart, he regretted that he had been the means of her losing the chance of her life.

"What do you want me to say, Lily?" he exclaimed with a desperate gesture. "I can't tell him I don't love you. I have loved you, God help me, for ten years."

She could have killed him for it.

"I can tell you, Dan, if you want me to," Galorey went on, "that I don't believe she cares a penny for any one on the face of the earth, for you or me."

Old Dan Blair's son showed his business training. His one idea was to "get out," and as he didn't care who the duchess of Breakwater loved or didn't love, he wanted to break away as fast as he could. He sat down at the table under the light of the lamp and drew out his wallet with its compact, thick little check book, the millionaire's pass to most of the things that he wants.

"You've taught me a lot," he said to the duchess of Breakwater, "and my father sent me over here for that. I have been awfully fond of you, too. I thought I was fonder than I am, I guess. At any rate I want to stand by one of my promises. That old place of yours—Stainer court—now that's got to be fixed up."

He made a few computations on paper, lifted the pad to her with the figures on it, round, generous and full.

"At home," he said, "in Blairtown, we have what we call 'engagement' parties, when each fellow brings a present to the girl, but this is what we might call a 'broken engagement party.' Now, I can't," the boy went on, "give this money to you very well; it won't look right. We will have to fix that up some way or other. You will have to say you got an unexpected inheritance from some uncle in Australia." He smiled at Galorey:

"We'll fix it up together."

His candor, his simplicity, were so charming, he stood before the two so young, so clear, so clean, that a sudden tenderness for him, and a sense of what she had lost, what she never had had, made her exclaim:

"Dan, I really don't care a pin for the money—I don't—but the hand she held out was seized by the other man and held fast. Galorey said:

"Very well, let it go at that. You don't care for the money, but you will take it just the same. Now, don't for God's sake, tell him that you care for him."

He made her meet his eyes this time: stronger than she, Galorey forced her to be sincere. She set Dan free and he turned and left them standing there facing each other. He softly crossed the room, and looking back, he saw them, tall, distinguished, both of them under the lamplight—enemies, and yet the closest friends bound by the strongest tie in the world.

As Dan went out through the curtains of the room and they fell behind him the duchess of Breakwater sank down in the chair by the side of the table; she buried her face. Gordon Galorey bent over her and again took her in his arms, and she suffered it.

"Dan, I Really Don't Care a Pin for the Money—I Don't."

TRUST'S PROFITS ARE EXCESSIVE

Steel Corporation Controls the Ore Market.

FREIGHT RATES TOO HIGH

Commissioner of Corporations Recommends That Trust Be Compelled to Dispose of Stock Holdings in Railroads.

Washington, Jan. 23.—The segregation of the United States Steel corporation's great railway holdings from the corporation itself is the radical recommendation thrown out by Herbert Knox Smith, commissioner of corporations, in the second installment of his report to the president on the steel industry of the country.

This second report deals with the cost of production. In it the commissioner of corporations holds that the United States Steel corporation is making a decidedly excessive profit on its ore deposits. The profits on ore, Mr. Smith charges, have not been based on competitive conditions, but have been established by agreement among the large interests holding the ore properties. These excessive prices, the commissioner adds, have put the iron and steel markets of the country on an inflated cost and price basis, to the probable disadvantage of the consumer.

The commissioner of corporations finds further that the profits which the United States Steel corporation has been making from its railroad properties are excessive. He contends that the corporation's action in reducing these rates by 20 cents per ton for the haul from the Mesaba mines to upper lake ports was in itself a concession that former rates were unreasonable. The commissioner believes, furthermore, that the present reduced rate of 60 cents per ton is still excessive.

"This situation," says Commissioner Smith, "clearly raises the question whether the interests of the public may not require the segregation of those railroad properties from the steel corporation. It might be argued that such a segregation would simply mean that the control of these railroads would remain in the hands of the interests who dominate the policy of the steel corporation."

"Such segregation, however, at least would prevent the transfer of the profits from these railroads to the treasury of the steel corporation. It would stop what is unquestionably an evil, and that is the imposition of high rates upon competitors' shipments, which puts them at a great disadvantage, while at the same time forcing them by reason of this very fact to contribute unduly to the profits of the steel corporation on transportation."

"If the connection between these railroads and the steel corporation were dissolved there would be no inducement to the steel corporation as such to desire unreasonable rates. On the contrary, there would be an inducement to keep these rates at a reasonable level. Under this arrangement, moreover, the iron and steel making concerns using these railroads would be substantially on an equal basis so far as transportation is concerned."

CUT ALL TARIFFS ON STEEL

Democratic Measure Enlarges Free List and Reduces Duties Heavily.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Reductions of from 30 to 50 per cent on all items in the iron and steel tariff and the placing on the tariff free list of iron ore, sewing machines, printing machinery, cash registers, nails and many other articles, against which a tariff is now levied, are proposed in the Democratic steel revision tariff bill, just made public.

The bill was completed by the Democratic members of the ways and means committee on Saturday. Sweeping reductions are made in all of the important items of the iron and steel tariff.

Among the articles not dutiable under the Payne-Aldrich bill, which would be placed on the free list are: iron ore, existing duty, 5.25 per cent; hoop and band iron and steel, 16 per cent; barbed wire and wire fencing, 7.75 per cent; nails, 17.57 per cent; horse shoes, 21 per cent; tungsten ore, 10 per cent; zinc ore, 36.57 per cent; cash registers, linotype machines, machine tools, printing presses, sewing machines and typewriters, 30 per cent.

The reductions made on finished steel and iron products range in many classes as high as 50 per cent.

Democratic Leader Underwood estimates that the bill will reduce the average tariff on steel imports from 34.51 per cent to 22.42 ad valorem; will reduce the government tariff revenue from steel products by $823,597 from 1911, and by $4,000,000 from 1910. Imports of steel products, he said, would be increased by nearly $20,000,000.

HARD COAL MINERS TO GET HIGHER PAY

Operators to Grant Ten Per Cent Increase.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Jan. 23.—While none of the coal operators will commit themselves, it is generally understood and believed among the mining men of the anthracite coal fields that there will be no strike of the miners when the present treaty expires March 31.

A 10 per cent increase of wages will be offered the union. This increase is based on the increase in the price of coal and is looked upon as a general offer, which will offset any strike movement of the union.

Several big coal operators have hinted that a step of this nature will be taken to ward off a struggle with the miners.

As soon as the demands of the miners are submitted to the operators a 10 per cent increase in wages will be offered. The plan has been decided on and is looked upon by operators as the means of preventing trouble.

The operators claim that the anthracite commission settled every grievance of the companies and the men with the exception of an increase in wages. The coal kings state there is nothing from their viewpoint which causes any attention or which can cause trouble with the exception of the money matter. All questions were thoroughly threshed out in 1902, they contend, and a strike in April would only resurrect the same issues.

The increase in wages comes from the high cost of living. Operators willingly admit that miners are entitled to an increase because the cost of living has soared so high in the past three years that present day wages are not enough for the miners.

BOY TRIES SUICIDE

Mother Cuts Down Body and Falls Unconscious.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Jan. 23.—Because his father scolded him for mischief he had done, Frank Yaris, thirteen years old, took the leather belt which his father wore about his mine clothing and tried to end his life by hanging in the kitchen of his home.

The boy's mother sat in an adjoining room, and she was startled by a mysterious noise in the kitchen. She hastened to investigate, and on opening the door was horrified to find the boy dangling from the end of the strap, which was fastened to a rafter. She seized a knife and cut down the boy and then screamed for help.

When neighbors arrived they found the mother unconscious over the body of her boy. Upon removing the strap from the boy's neck he showed signs of life, and by the time a doctor arrived he had nearly recovered.

Hold Colored Preacher For 26 Murders

Lake Charles, La., Jan. 23.—Detectives investigating a series of twenty six murders which have occurred in Louisiana during the last year, are holding a prisoner in Jennings a colored preacher, King Harris. In each case the victim was colored. While Harris is not accused of a specific crime, it is believed that he, as head of the "sacred church," worked some of his followers into such a frenzy that they committed several killings in the name of their religion.

Railroads Must Carry Beer.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Beer is a commodity and railroads must carry it when offered for transportation from one state into "dry" counties of another state, regardless of the laws of the latter state. The supreme court of the United States made this ruling regarding a proposed shipment from Indiana into "dry" Kentucky counties.

Kaiser's Daughter's Betrothal Denied.

NEWSPAPERS OF CIVIL WAR

Publication of Regimental Journals
Was Prolific Source of Interest—
Some of Papers Recalled.

Some of the "soldier boy" newspapers of Civil war times are recalled in an article by Martha Pickens Halsey in the Chicago Daily News.

Subjected as he was to the monotonous routine of army life, recreation was indispensable to the well-being of the soldier. Concerts were given with great success, many of the men having musical instruments with them. These were guarded jealously through the exigencies of the campaign.

To those who were of a literary turn of mind the publication of the regimental newspaper was a prolific source of interest. It was eagerly read and its daily issue was awaited with keen pleasure, its appearance being second only in importance to the arrival of the mail from home. Some of these old army papers are now in the possession of the Chicago Historical society.

It is interesting to note the variety of topics treated. Poems, grave and gay, advertisements, some of them very amusing, incidents, jokes, ardent appeals to the public sentiment, notices of entertainments to be given, racy descriptions of encounters with pretty rebels, gibes at the quality of the food supplied by Uncle Sam, are all to be found in these old-time publications.

As an offset to the "poetry side" of war is quoted a "hard prose" side from the pen of one of the boys in blue of the Nineteenth Illinois volunteers written for the Zouave Gazette.

"Those who think it a romantic life to go a-soldiering would do well to take a blanket into the back yard to sleep upon one of these cold nights and they would soon discover the reality by trying to keep warm under such circumstances. Uncle Sam furnishes us with an allowance of clothing and blankets, but for the vicissitudes of camp life it is insufficient. We would suggest to the friends of our soldiery to supply us with warm underclothing and warm woolen socks and we would then give the enemy a warm reception."

The editors of the Zouave Gazette were W. B. Redfield, formerly of the Chicago Evening Journal, and Lieut.

Regimental Paper Was a Prolific Source of Interest.

Lyman Bridges. While the Nineteenth Illinois was stationed at Elizabethtown, Ky., the paper was published for several months in the office of the Democrat of that place, then out of business on account of the advent of the federal troops.

Another paper had the sounding title of the War Eagle and Camp Journal of the Army of the West. It contained the touching little poem, "The Countersign," that became so popular. One of the makeshifts during the war was the utilizing of wall paper taken from the houses for printing purposes. It will be recalled that Confederate money was printed on this same material. A facsimile of a page of the "Unconditional S. Grant," one of the old campaign publications, shows on the other side a specimen of mural decoration.

It is divided into squares, perhaps to represent a kind of trellis, and upon it immense roses are blooming in profusion.

Woman Was Soldier.

Mrs. L. E. Bliss of Augusta county, Vermont, has made application for a pension on the ground that, dressed as a man, she served four years in the federal army as a member of Company G, Sixty-third Illinois volunteer Infantry.

The applicant is an old, decrepit woman, wrinkled by age, and her brow furrowed by care and brooding over her efforts to keep the wolf from her door. On one cheek she bears an ugly scar which she says was made by a Confederate sabre at the siege of Vicksburg. The old woman appears to have no trouble to substantiate every detail of her claim of the four years' service.

Composition of Putty.

Putty is composed of dry whiting and raw linseed oil. For glazing, add about 10 per cent. of white lead to increase durability. In hot climates a little cotton-seed oil should be added to prevent the putty from drying too quickly.

Japanese Clocks.

Nagoya, Japan, produces about $500,000 worth of clocks annually. Tokyo comes next with an output of $250,000. Japan's exports of clocks amount to about $350,000 a year.

ELECTRICAL NOTES

There are at present 18 recognized systems of wireless telegraphy. The telephone rate in Denmark outside of the larger cities is about $11 a year.

A new electrical office device will seal, stamp and keep a record of 150 letters a minute.

During the last year 1,200,000 miles of telegraph wire were added to that already standing.

As early as 400 B. C. the ancients had observed that iron rods had the power to avert lightning.

A machine has been invented with which the magnetic effect of the iron and steel parts of a ship upon a compass needle can be measured.

It requires 2,000,000 horse power to operate the textile mills of the United States, of which 500,000 horse power is produced by electricity.

The Madrid telephone company, though the principal one in Spain, with stations in nineteen leading cities, has only 3,735 subscribers.

Engineers declare that the waterfalls of the Alps are capable of generating enough electrical power to run all the railroads of Switzerland.

An electric motor with a number of flexible rods mounted at right angles to its shaft has been invented in Germany for hoisting and renovating fur.

The polarity of electric batteries may be tested by soaking blotting paper in potassium iodide and starch, the paper showing a blue stain next the positive pole when placed between the poles.

Few steam locomotives can haul trains over more than a two per cent grade, while most electric railways negotiate grades of from seven per cent to ten.

CURED OF SOLITAIRE PLAY

How One Wife Put Stop to Her Husband's Preoccupation With the Game.

"My husband used to be a solitaire fiend," said a woman the other day. "He used to come home nights and play several games while I was preparing dinner. After eating—and he would hurry that—he would rush to his card table and play until late at night. If this had happened only once a week it would have been different and I would not have said a word about it. As it was, he would play every night we were not going out together."

"I like card playing, but when it comes to making the game of solitaire an occupation, I draw the line."

"I worried and fretted about the proposition as I thought it was doing my husband harm, as well as keeping him from being sociable. Until I thought I would have gray hair. I remonstrated, argued, fought and shed tears, but all to no avail. Finally I hit upon a scheme."

"As I was an unusually poor card player my husband had criticized me several times for my ignorance, good humoredly, of course, and I decided to learn to play solitaire also. I bought a pack of playing cards and one evening at dinner I told the solitaire fiend that I wanted him to teach me the game. He was delighted to think I at last had come to his side and he said he would instruct me that very night."

"Accordingly, after we had tidied up the dining room—he helped me that time—we started in on the single handed game. My husband sweated and almost swore at times and he called me a 'bonehead' and several other names that mean the same thing. Finally he gave it up in disgust and he has not played cards since."

MORE CHEESE DISHES.

Cheese, being so rich in protoid, it may take the place of more expensive meat dishes.

Cheese Wafers.—Sprinkle crackers generously with grated cheese, dust over a little salt and cayenne pepper, and bake in the oven until the cheese is melted.

Cheese and Olive Salad.—Mash a cream cheese, moisten with cream, and season with salt and cayenne. Add six olives finely chopped, lettuce finely cut and half a can of sweet red peppers cut in strips. Press in original shape of cheese and let stand two hours. Cut in slices, separate in pieces and serve on lettuce leaves with boiled or mayonnaise dressing.

Gnocchi a la Romana.—Melt a fourth of a cup of butter, and when bubbling add a fourth of a cup of flour, the same amount of cornstarch and two cups of milk. Cook three minutes, stirring constantly. Add the yolks of two eggs slightly beaten, and a half cup of cheese. Pour into buttered mold or shallow pan and when cool cut in squares or strips, sprinkle with a fourth of a cup of cheese and brown in the oven. Serve from the dish in which it is baked.

Cheese Omelet.—Beat two eggs slightly, add one-half a teaspoon of melted butter, a little salt and pepper and a tablespoon of cheese, grated. Into the omelet pan add a tablespoonful of butter and when melted pour in the mixture, cook until firm, sprinkle with grated cheese and serve with graham bread sandwiches.

Cheese Fondue.—Mix together a cupful each of bread crumbs and scalded milk; add a fourth of a pound of cheese cut in small pieces, a tablespoonful of butter and a half teaspoonful of salt. Beat the yolks of three eggs until thick and add, then cut and fold in the whites, beaten until stiff. Pour into a buttered baking dish and bake twenty minutes in a moderate oven.

Nellie Maxwell.

All day long the minister vainly tried to define Christianity, and when the evening was come, his wife told him to go across the street and get the stone church and put it in his vest pocket.

Odd Ways of Catching Fish.

The Icelanders are said at one time to have taught bears to jump into the sea and catch seals. In China birds do equally well, for at a signal they dive into the lakes and bring up large fish grasped in their bills. In Greece the fishermen use branches of pine steeped in pitch and lighted; the inhabitants of Amorog used Cyprus-leaved cedar, which is used when lighted as a flambeau, and the Chinese hang in the night with white painted boards placed in a manner to reflect the rays of the moon doubly upon the water. These attract the fish to the boat, when the men cast a large net and seldom fail to draw out considerable quantities. Anchovies are fished for in a similar manner.

TANNING SKINS.

Directions For Making Best Use of the Prey of Gun or Trap.

Many a boy who has been successful with trap or gun would be glad to save some of the fur skins secured as a souvenir or for some purpose, such as making lap robes, rugs, etc. He is quite often prevented from doing this because of the expense when the work is done by a skilled tanner or else by the lack of knowledge of how to do it himself.

There are several processes by which hides may be tanned with the fur on, but the following is about as cheap and handy as any:

Wash the hide in warm water, remove all flesh matter from the inner surface and loose dirt from the hair side. Now wash in strong, rather warm soap suds. The old fashioned soft soap made from wood ashes is best. Either rub by hand or gently on a washboard. As soon as thoroughly cleansed and rinsed, press as much of the water out as possible. Add the following mixture to the flesh side: Common salt and ground alum, one-fourth ounce each, and one-half ounce of borax dissolved in one quart of hot water. When sufficiently cool to work with the hand, add enough rye meal to make a thick paste. Spread the mixture on the flesh side, fold and let remain in a shady, airy place for two weeks, then remove the paste and wash. When nearly dry, scrape the flesh side thoroughly with a dull knife, and rub with the hands until the skin is soft and pliable.—Kansas Farmer.

Handy For Hanging Things.

Farmers will find many places around the barn where a hook to hang things on will be of great convenience. Instead of buying hooks, use wire nails, and if driven as shown in the drawing they will support a very heavy weight. Drive the lower nail first.—Farm and Fireside.

DOUBLE NAIL.

Talk problems over with your neighbor and ask his support in building up the schools, improving the roads and in getting the community organized for social and economic betterment.

Among the Chickens.

Don't tie up the top of the grit sack just because the hens are out on the ground. They cannot get much grit themselves, and what they do get is not sharp enough to do the necessary grinding.

A combination of high roosts and heavy fowls seldom proves satisfactory. Lame birds will surely resent wide perches, not over two feet from the floor, are the best for the heavy breeds.

One good way to keep insect pests down is to give the birds all the dust they need to roll in. Just try that and see how they will "second your notion" by rolling every day and many times a day.

Dust which is used for poultry should not be left too long in the houses. It gets old and perhaps infested with insects, so that it will defeat the purpose for which it is placed in the boxes.

A flat stone and a hammer are all the tools necessary to manufacture grit from the pieces of broken crockery and dishes which accumulate more or less around every home. The pieces can be pounded fine for chick grit or coarse for the older birds.—Farm and Fireside.
